Goodyear is the 9th Fastest Growing City in the Nation

What it means to live in a city that's booming with growth.

AT A GLANCE There's extraordinary growth taking place across the city. More businesses are opening, new homes are being built and more people than ever are calling Goodyear home. It's an exciting time, but growth can also raise questions. In this issue, we'll explore what it means to live in one of the fastest growing cities in the country.

From the Mayor

Goodyear has been the focus of considerable attention following the recent news that we are the 9th fastest growing city in the nation. Goodyear is certainly experiencing tremendous growth, not just in population, but also in jobs. Goodyear has added nearly 8,400 jobs since 2010 — a 36% increase! Jobs growth is important because it provides revenue to support city services, provides opportunities for our residents to work close to home and provides a customer base that supports our existing businesses. Growth also allows us to attract more restaurants, retail and entertainment options to continue to enhance the quality of life for our residents.

Two growth-related concerns that we've heard from residents relate to the city's future water supply and traffic congestion. These are valid concerns, and the Goodyear City Council and staff carefully evaluate development opportunities in light of them. Here are a few things to note on each:

Water

- The city's water resources are robust and can support the current needs of our residents and growth in the foreseeable future.
- The current shortages from the Colorado River do not impact Goodyear.
- Goodyear staff actively participates in multiple ongoing regional efforts.

Streets

- Our current Transportation Master Plan outlines a 20-year transportation program and contains recommendations for short-term (5 years), medium-term (10 years) and long-term (20 years) periods.
- We evaluate our short-term transportation needs on an ongoing basis and have initiated several Capital Improvement Program (CIP) projects to address critical needs. Some recent examples are:
 - The sidewalk on Yuma Road from Sarival to Canyon Trails.
 - The widening of northbound Estrella Parkway from Roosevelt Street to I-10.
 - Constructing stand-alone signal structures for left turn arrows to reduce confusion and improve traffic safety at the intersection of Pebble Creek Parkway and McDowell Road.

Growth is inevitable and will sometimes be accompanied by challenges. Our council welcomes resident participation in the planning process as we evaluate the needs of our community. We want to grow in the right way so we can maintain the high-quality services and quality of life our current residents enjoy. Council meetings are open to the public, and you may address the council at the beginning of every meeting. I hope to see you at the next one!

Council Corner

When I was asked what it means to live in one of the fastest growing cities in the nation, two words came to mind – excitement and frustration. I’ve lived in Goodyear since 2001 when the population was 16,000. I’ve seen the growth of retail centers and thousands of homes, the paving of roads like Sarival and Bullard avenues, the expansion of roads from two lanes to six and large employers moving in. Like many of you, I’ve been frustrated by the lack of continued retail growth and ask, ‘where are the non-chain restaurants?!’ There isn’t a council discussion about economic development where all of us aren’t stressing the need for more dining options.

Being one of the fastest growing cities also reminds me of the word patience. I’ve been honored and blessed to serve on the Goodyear City Council since 2011 and have learned that development and patience go hand-in-hand. The once solid rule of “retail follows rooftops” isn’t as strong as it once was; the entire marketplace has changed – one mouse click at a time. Many of our warehouses generate sale tax revenue and “all of these apartments” offer upscale housing for young professionals and downsizing for baby boomers.

As a city council, we are striving to bring a balance of places to work and live with new sources of revenue to avoid relying on property taxes. In the past three years, we’ve built over $250 million of public infrastructure projects without changing the property tax rate. We waited to build the Goodyear Recreation Campus until we could do it right, and boy, did we get that right! I share your frustrations with being one of the fastest growing cities, but I hope that you’ll share my excitement and patience as we watch the future unfold before our eyes.

Are You Ready to Help Shape Your City?

Are you looking to take that first step towards becoming more involved in your city? Do you want to learn more about how Goodyear operates and build relationships with other residents and emerging community leaders? If so, Goodyear LEAD (Leadership Enrichment and Development) is the program for you. Applications will be accepted Nov. 1-15. To learn more about the 12-week program and apply online, visit goodyearaz.gov/lead.

There are also several openings on the city’s boards, commissions and committees. Members of these groups are volunteers and are appointed by the city council. They make recommendations to council regarding a range of topics. Your application is good for a year, and can be used to fill vacancies as they pop up.

Current openings include:

Goodyear is Approaching 100,000 Residents

What a difference a decade makes! Goodyear grew 46% between 2010 and 2020. In 2010, Goodyear had 65,275 residents, Goodyear Ballpark had barely been open a year and the nation was coming out of the Great Recession. Today, Goodyear is celebrating its 75th anniversary, and it's fitting that the city is reaching major milestones. Goodyear is officially the 9th fastest growing city in the nation and the second fastest growing city in Arizona.

“As Goodyear grows at an unprecedented rate, thoughtful planning has been key. We anticipated this growth and it wasn't a question of if it would happen, but when. We've got our eyes focused on the future – planning years ahead will ensure the city isn't catching up – but is always ahead of the growth curve.”
Julie Karins, City Manager

Growing Opportunities

The growth Goodyear has seen in the last decade is not by chance. The Goodyear City Council is committed to growing responsibly and setting the stage for that growth. One way the city does this is by prioritizing the things that matter to residents, including safe neighborhoods, well-maintained streets, a superb quality of life and a sense of community.

More Jobs Close to Home

Goodyear has 36% more jobs now than in 2010. It's important to the city council that there are high quality jobs close to home for residents. In 2020, the city of Goodyear welcomed more than 30 new businesses – even during the pandemic – and announced nearly 3,500 new jobs. Creating more jobs in Goodyear will help prevent thousands from having to fight traffic to get to work elsewhere in the Valley. As our business community grows, so will our workforce!

New Amenities, Streets and Services

The more Goodyear grows, the more opportunities there are to invest in infrastructure without raising taxes. Developers pay a one-time construction sales tax and development impact fee. The city can use that money to build or improve infrastructure to maintain service levels for existing residents. Recently, some of the dollars were used to build the Goodyear Recreation Campus, and currently, some are being used to build Goodyear Civic Square at GSQ and the Goodyear Surface Water Treatment Facility. In addition, some developers are required to build or improve the streets near their development.

Planning for Growth Today and Tomorrow

The growth we've seen in Goodyear was anticipated, and with the city being only 11-percent built out, more growth is projected. The key to it all is thoughtful planning to continue to take care of current residents and welcome new ones! To view the city's master plans and strategic plan, visit goodyearaz.gov/masterplans.

General Plan determines land use in the city. For example, it determines if a piece of land will be for future retail, industrial or residential use. Every 10 years, residents vote on the city's General Plan. The next General Plan will be voted on in 2024.

Master Plans projects future city needs over 10 years for essential services, such as transportation, parks and water.

Strategic Plan adopted by the Goodyear City Council every three years to guide the master plans and determines priorities when crafting the annual budget.

Growing the City Team

As our city grows at a rapid pace, the number of employees working to serve you must also grow to ensure Goodyear provides the highest level of customer service!

Spurring More Growth

Goodyear Civic Square at GSQ, opening next summer, will create the heart of Goodyear. Located on the northwest corner of McDowell Road and 150th Drive (just west of Harkins Theater), it is anticipated to spur more growth – creating new jobs, shopping, dining and a community gathering spot. The new development includes city hall, a two-story library, a two-acre park, upscale class A office space and Goodyear's first ever four-level parking garage.

Retailers and restaurants often choose where to open based on various factors, such as:

- Demographics and density
- Daytime population and trends
- Local workforce
- Resident purchasing power/household income
- Nearby competition
- Location, traffic flow and parking

“Businesses choose a city to locate to based on access to clients, labor force, suppliers and a whole lot of other research, but the retail survey lets us know which businesses to target, and it assists with our effort to recruit the community's most highly desired retailers.”

Lori Gary, Economic Development Director

Attracting the Businesses You Want

The Goodyear Economic Development team is busy attracting new businesses to the city in multiple target industries, including aviation and aerospace, advanced manufacturing, advanced business services, technology, medical and healthcare, higher education... and yes, retail. They work hard to attract the stores, restaurants and entertainment options that our residents desire.

Smart Water Planning Allows Goodyear to Continue to Grow and Thrive

FUN FACT!

Arizona uses the same amount of water today as it did in 1957!

Living in the desert, everyone knows water is precious. Every drop counts! Goodyear has a strong history of water planning and efficiency, and the city works with regional and state water partners to track conditions and plan for a reliable water future. A few ways that's being done include:

- Securing water from multiple sources
- Storing water underground
- Exploring and encouraging new ways to conserve water – Goodyear residents use about 25% less water than other Valley cities!
- Investing in infrastructure to create a diverse and reliable water supply

As part of the city's robust water management plan, a project is underway to build a new water treatment facility. Currently, all of the city's water supply is groundwater. The new facility will help diversify the city's water by adding surface water into the mix. The facility, which is set to open in 2022, will initially treat 8 million gallons of surface water a day, and with future expansion, will reach 16 million gallons a day.

DID YOU KNOW?

Before a developer builds a community in Goodyear, they have to prove they have a 100-year assured water supply available to them.

SIMPLE STEPS to save water

Outdoor water use can account for up to 70% of a home's water use, so one of the best ways to save water and money is to look at the water you use outside. To get started, here are three things you can do:

Inspect your irrigation system – look for leaks for misdirected sprinklers monthly.

Only water when needed – trees and shrubs only need to be watered once a week or less in the fall.

Attend a FREE water conservation class – in person or online.

Your Questions Answered

Even when my faucet is on cold, my water still comes out hot. Why does this happen?

This is very common in the Valley during warmer months. There are a few reasons for this:

- Temperature of the groundwater (some wells run hotter than others, especially on hot days)
- Depth of service lines on private property
- Pipe insulation in a home

If you'd like more information or to speak with someone on the Goodyear water team, visit goodyearaz.gov/water or call 623-882-7887.

Is the Goodyear Recreation Campus open to non-Goodyear residents?

Anyone can access the free amenities, which include the outdoor courts, playground, walking paths and the indoor teen room. Other areas of the campus, such as the aquatic center, fitness rooms and indoor walking track require a pass. Due to the high-demand for these amenities, passes are currently only available for purchase by Goodyear residents. As capacity allows, passes will be available for non-residents to purchase. Have more rec campus questions? Connect with staff by emailing gyrec@goodyearaz.gov or calling 623-882-7525.

Know What Your Smoke Alarm is Telling You

We've all been awakened by a chirping smoke alarm that won't stop, but hopefully, not many of us have experienced a true fire emergency in our homes. A smoke alarm makes more than one sound, and each sound is an alert for something different. Get to know what the beeps and chirps mean to better protect your home.

A continuous set of three loud beeps—beep, beep, beep—means smoke or fire. Get out of the home immediately and call 911.

A single chirp every 30 or 60 seconds means the battery is low and must be changed.

All smoke alarms must be replaced after 10 years.

Helping the Homeless: Advice from Goodyear Police

Everyone wants to help those in need, and Goodyear residents are certainly known for their generosity. But Goodyear Police say handing out spare change or cash to panhandlers isn't always the best course of action.

"The best thing we can do for them is to offer them one of the many services we have in the Valley," said Deputy Chief David Farrow.

One way the police department does that is through its Homeless Outreach Team (HOT). The team helps connect those in Goodyear who may be homeless with resources to help them get back on their feet. So, what can you do? The police department recommends you give to a local charity instead.

"We have some people who are really down on their luck and have experienced the loss of a job or homelessness and just need some help to get back on their feet. Unfortunately, we do have people who try to take advantage of the situation," Farrow said. "We strongly suggest that you give to these organizations that can directly provide the services people need to find a permanent solution."
